

Jus Dicere National Case Comment Competition

Jus Dicere in Brief :

One of the major ways of development in the legal field is research. Law is extremely dynamic in nature and as society develops, law develops. The need of the society is what changes the law. So, how do we understand the need of the society? One step to know that is by inviting opinion from people of the society on various subject.

We, at Jus Dicere, have started with one major motive, that is to provide a platform for people to express their opinions and to showcase their research on a national as well as international platform with a huge reader base. The international journal is intended to allow individuals present their research work pertaining to various fields, be it social, political or economic, with main aim being the legal field. Providing standard articles for the readers, pertaining to various fields is what we work towards.
