Contest for MBA Aspirants

“The objective of the 2015 United Nations Climate Change Conference aims to achieve, for the first time in over 20 years of UN negotiations, a binding and universal agreement on climate, from all the nations of the world. In this context developing nations like India walk on a razor edge. World’s second largest populous country, India has to balance both-the energy requirements of its people and the harmful after effects of energy consumption. At the same time developed nations’ energy requirements also continue unabated.”

Do you think that nations like India are subjected to shouldering a disproportionate burden of climate change mitigation?
